GIRL CRUSH

CHRISSY TEIGEN

She's a model, TV host and that funny girl you're dying to add to your squad. See what makes her tick

STYLEWATCH: Whether we see you on the red carpet or in a paparazzi shot, you always look great! When do you feel the best?

CHRISSY TEIGEN: Most people would probably say that it's when they're just wearing jeans and a T-shirt with no makeup on, but I feel most confident after a red carpet event—when you work with a fantastic stylist and know that your hair and makeup team killed it. Then, you come home and are half-unzipped but you still have that great hair, makeup and your dress on—that's like my ultimate sexy-time feel. It's like that jeans and T-shirt moment but with a gown, in bed, eating hamburgers.

SW: Do you shop and pick out clothes for John?

CT: No, he's good at shopping and definitely knows fashion—I don't have to tell him anything. He is always on Mr Porter. He orders from there and then it's like a little gift waiting for him at home. I did make him stop wearing this particular jacket though. It was red and looked almost waterproof or something—I hated it.

SW: What items do you think every woman should have in her closet?

CT: A great leather jacket is key, one that just gets better with age. Also a big airport-style tote. For some reason I love getting dressed for the airport and the bag is always an important choice. I have a tote from The Row that fits everything. And I'm a fan of kimonos right now—those very long, silky things to throw on over an outfit that make it look instantly cool.

SW: You're the food expert/host on the ABC show, FABlife. What is your favorite thing about cooking?

CT: Some people like going out, but I love being at home and cooking for my family and friends. I started to get into it at 20, when I was coming into my own as a model. It was a calming thing. I would get off the plane, go straight to the grocery store, brainstorm recipes, and come home and cook.

SW: How do you eat all that yummy food and still look so good?

CT: I try to find balance. I love grilled cheese, but I don't eat that all the time. I'm just not Instagramming green juice—it's boring! You know people who say eating healthy is a lifestyle? I don't believe that. I think you should eat things you crave in moderation. It's important to satisfy that emotional side of eating, that rush you get when you have something so delicious. To me, that feeling is just as important as looking good.

Q+A

WITH FASHION DIRECTOR ERIN SUMWALT

Q: Where can I find Tucker? I love the line, but it seems to have disappeared.

A: I've been a fan of Gaby Basora's line, Tucker, for years. The brand has been on hiatus since spring 2014 but is back now to the delight of editors and celebs. I've always counted on Tucker for its stylish silken fabrics, prints and easy-to-wear pieces that always make me feel good when I wear them. My go-to compliment-inducing styles are the Classic Knee-Length and Market Dress (shown on Reese).

Q: Where can I find cool pieces to make my holiday style more interesting?

A: Check out Express—they're launching an elevated capsule collection called Edition. I got a sneak peek of the line and it's filled with cool-girl essentials. The design team really focused on updating classic items. The color palette is mostly black with pops of crimson and gold accents, and there is a lot of silk, chiffon, leather and lace—perfect for party season! Whether you're looking for a moto jacket to pair with your LBD, need a new lacy piece or are considering a tuxedo look this season, you will find something to edge up your holiday vibe.

Express Edition (from top) "Dolman with Neck Tie" silk top, $98, and "Gold Metal Mesh Bag" in leather, $98; express.com

Q: Help! I'm busty and need a supportive strapless bra.

A: One of our staffers recently tested the Butterfly Bra from Ashley Stewart and loved it. It's a convertible strapless style that can be worn six different ways. Translation: It will work with almost any dress you own. It also has underwire cups with a graduated lift that gives you great shape. But what makes this bra beyond special is the wide, double-wrap band, which is lined with silicone for a no-slip fit.

Ditch Dry Skin

Nothing ruins a good beauty vibe like flaky, patchy skin. Save your face this winter by adding these smooth moves to your routine

1 WASH

Foaming cleansers can be harsh on dry skin. Instead, use a creamy formula with lukewarm water to wash your face, says Washington, D.C. dermatologist Dr. Elizabeth Tanzi. The gentler combo cleans skin while keeping it soft.

Burt's Bees Intense Hydration Cream Cleanser, $10; at drugstores

2 REPLENISH

Switch out your lightweight lotion for a thicker, richer face cream. To get double the dose of hydration, apply your cream directly onto slightly damp skin, says Dr. Tanzi. This helps lock in moisture.

Clinique Dramatically Different Moisturizing Cream, $26; clinique.com

3 PAMPER

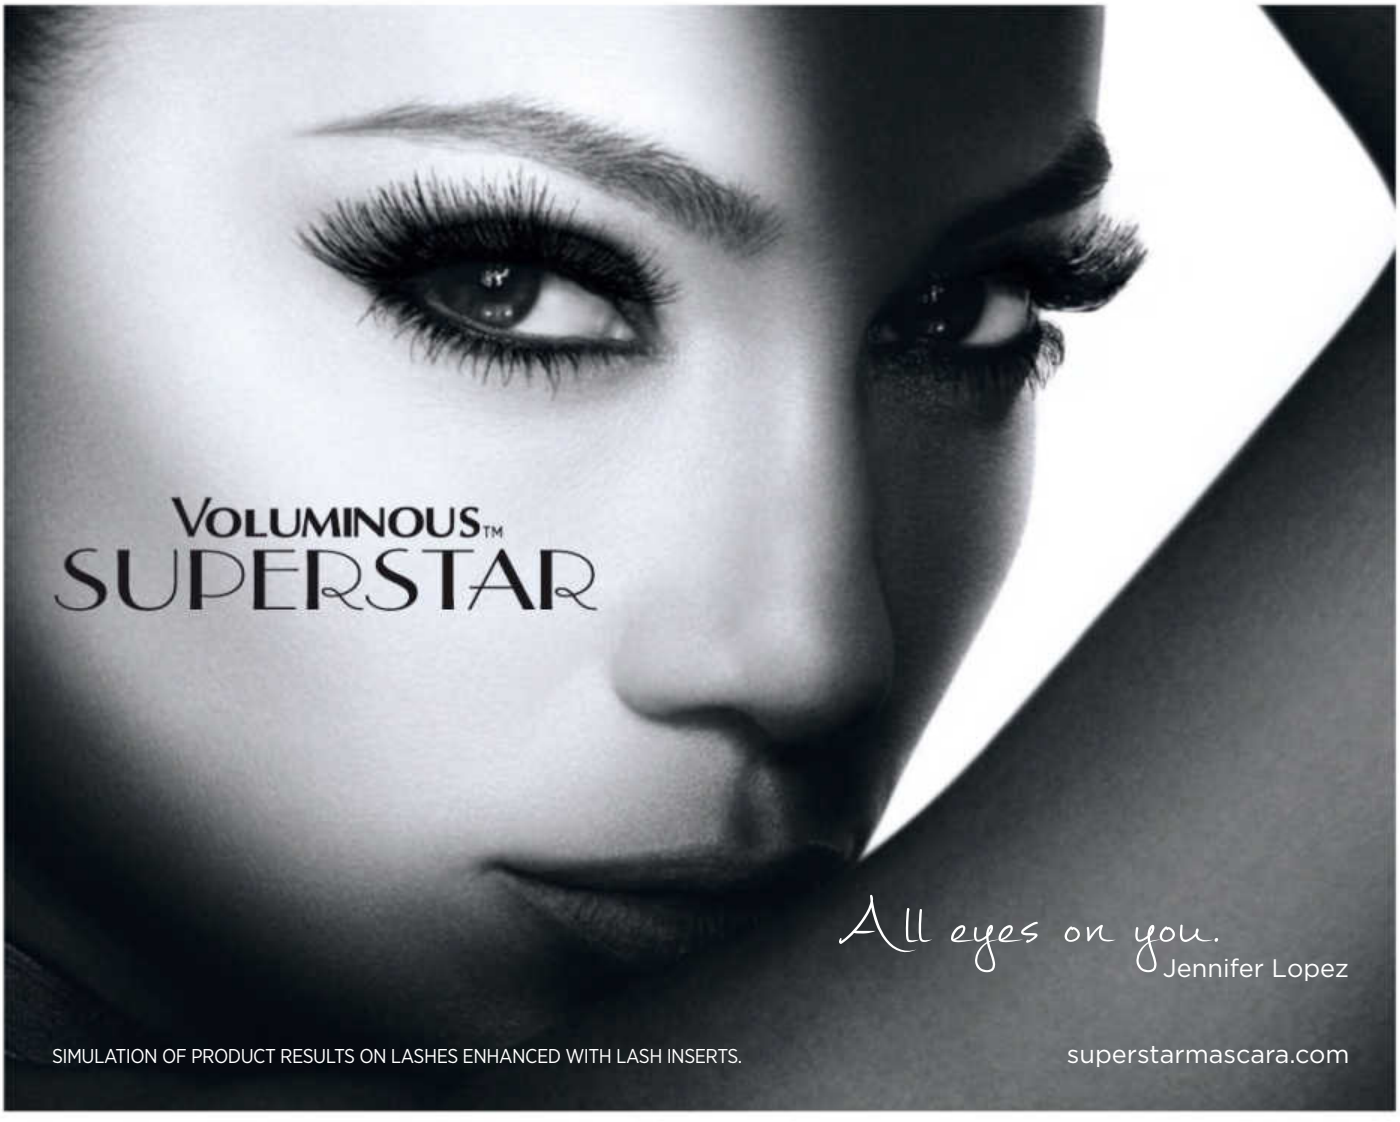

A weekly sheet mask will give your complexion an extra boost, says Dr. Tanzi. Once applied, it literally creates a barrier, sealing in all the good stuff and helping it better absorb into your skin.

Leaders Daily Wonders Bye Bye to Dry Hydrating Mask, $4; ulta.com

Q+A

WITH BEAUTY DIRECTOR HOLLY CARTER

Emily Ratajkowski

Q: How can I get the glitter off of my eyes and nails?
A: It's all about that base! For my lids, I like to apply primer that's made for glitter. Urban Decay's formula will not only help glitter stay put but it also makes it easy to remove—you just need water. For nails, a special base coat like Sally Hansen's lets you peel off polish. Be sure to let it dry fully before applying your polish. You can also go the old-fashioned route by soaking cotton balls in remover and letting them sit on nail beds for about a minute.

Q: When is the best time to exfoliate—day or night?
A: P.M. is ideal. Here's why: Piled up dead skin cells act like a road block for skin care, says dermatologist Dr. Whitney Bowe. Freshly exfoliated skin allows ingredients to penetrate deeply and work their magic. That benefit becomes especially important at night since that's when many of us use our most intensive anti-aging products.

Q: What's the best way to tame my cray-cray cowlick?
A: Start by applying a light hold serum and blow-dry your hair right after you wash and condition—don't let it air dry. Blow it in the opposite direction of the cowlick (the way you want it to go) and set it with hair spray. If it's still acting up, enlist the help of a straightening iron to put it in its place.
